Dear Danielle,

I am writing you with a few questions regarding the planning and building for the Hardin and 380 corners. More specifically the NE corner of Hardin and White Avenue (across the street from Cockrill Middle School). The most recent diagram, I have seen, is showing a Fairfield Inn & Suites across the street from Cockrill Middle School. I have attached that diagram to this email. I wanted to find out the legitimacy of this. Is a hotel going up across the street from a middle school? I am not alone in my concern over this. To my knowledge, there is not a single school across the street from a hotel. It seems like a security and safety nightmare. Many parents with children that attend Cockrill are angry about this. There has been a lot of talk about it on Facebook and on different neighborhood sites. I can say without any hesitation, it is not good. Could you please verify what is in the planning to go into that spot, and if consideration of the middle school has been given with this or future planning decisions for that location? As a homeowner and parent zoned for Cockrill, I would like to know if there is reason for this concern.

Sincerely,
Kimberly Jackson

Hello,

I heard through the grapevine that there is a proposal to build a hotel near Cockrill middle school on Hardin. I beg you and urge you if you have any say in this decision to please reconsider. I don't think a hotel right next to middle school is a very good idea. I know there are many businesses that are going to be built on 380 right there by Hardin, but I don't think that's the right place for a hotel. I was assuming it'd be housing but hoping for family friendly dining.

For whatever it is worth, the hotel should at least move across 380, but not be located so close to a school. Food and places for these middle schoolers to hang out would make a lot more sense.
