Re: McKinney Expressions with a Twist

The "McKinney Expressions with a Twist" workshop focused on bringing the importance of art through our daily lives; to combine human behaviors and art was successfully presented, which as a follow-up being used today by the attendants in group therapy and classrooms.

With each presenter, a variety of activities kept the audience engaged.

One presenter shared her life changing experience, utilizing art helped her through a crisis she was going through. Another presenter had two different assignments; one involving two to partner from each end of the canvas meeting in the middle which was very interesting and the emotions they described while creating. One shared the experiences she has witnessed describing the feelings children as young as 4 years old, when attending exhibits at local museums. The behaviors of the children are interesting to watch when viewing different pieces of art, especially abstract. There was even an exercise in which groups were given different pieces of art and they each had to "Defend their art".

This workshop was not well attended but the feedback gave us more insight for future workshops in marketing. Those that did attend were excited and gained more insight into the art around us.

We had many respond, intending to join. However, future workshops would be presented in a smaller venue and have a limit to seating.

We are very thankful for the support the McKinney Arts Commission and would love to make this event an annual tradition.

Respectfully,

9:05 a.m. Art Therapy presented by Jodi McKee, LPC-M: Jodi McKee is a Board Certified Registered Art Therapist as well as a Licensed Professional Counselor Supervisor with over 15 years of experience. She received her undergraduate degree in Psychology from Austin College and her graduate degree in Marriage and Family Therapy/Clinical Art Therapy from Loyola Marymount University. Her passion is for children and families in crisis. Most of her professional work has been spent in hospital or shelter settings. She currently supports clients with eating disorders, and she lives in Plano with her teenage son.

10:30 a.m. Communicating through Art presented by Talley Williams: Talley Williams is an autodidactic entrepreneur and artist whose career spans a more than a quarter of a century. Talley relocated from the San Francisco Bay Area with her husband of 27yrs David Williams, and two sons, Nicholas and Jordan 20+ years ago to Plano. Mrs. Williams enjoyed a prosperous career in Dallas, as a proprietor, interior decorator and image consultant to professional men and women. She holds a patent, copyrights, and a published art novella of her own unique works, and is currently seeking trademark. She is known for her ability to marry visual presentation and intention in unusual and bold ways.

In 2012-2015 Mrs. Williams brought her unique brand and background to the city Plano, as the Director/Gallerist for Plano Art Association. In that position she exercised full use of her skillset to, as she puts it, "build bridges between communities using art as a platform." Utilizing the arts Mrs. Williams expanded the city's desire to promote diversity and represent itself as a city of excellence.

In 2012, Mrs. Williams was a featured artist at the Mc Kinney Art Center of Dallas where she rendered a performance entitled, "Pangea: We Are All in This Together".

12:15 p.m. Observation of Art presented by Professor Jennifer Siebert: Seibert's installations, drawings, paintings, and videos have been exhibited nationally and internationally with solo and group exhibitions in the United States, France, Switzerland, Albania, and Italy with her drawings, paintings, and installations. She has created two feature length films and several short films, many of which were made possible through competitive research fellowships and grants. She has attended residencies home and abroad and has won multiple awards for her paintings, installations, and short films. Seibert is currently a Professor of Art at Collin College, and was a Tenured Professor of Art at Eastern Michigan University for 9 years before moving home to Texas to raise her family. She currently teaches painting and 2-dimensional design. Past courses have been drawing, installation, video, animation, and graduate seminars.

Through her abstractions of reality Seibert is trying to measure the distances between want, loss, consumption, debt, beginnings, ends, progression, and decline.

1:30 p.m. Power of Play presented by Mayra Ozturk: Mayra is a bilingual child development specialist with 6 years' experience in the field. She received her Bachelor of art in Psychology from the University of Texas at Dallas and went on to receive her Master of science in Human Development and Early Childhood Disorders a year after again from the University of Texas at Dallas. Throughout the years she has worked with children in a variety of settings which include private school, Early Head Start, early childhood intervention and PPCD at Mesquite-Independent School District. Mayra has worked with families and children while providing parent education sessions, providing service coordination of resources available as well as working with families outside of the classroom while teaching in a special education setting. She was published while in graduate school and featured in an article regarding Facilitating Play on the University of Texas at Dallas and School of Behavioral and Brain Science's Center for Children and Families Blog. Mayra has a passion for early childhood and families that has brought her where she is today. I loved the first 30 minutes and then I got bored with the rest of the workshop. The last speaker was not "Art" related which would also disappoint me.

What, if anything, would you add to make this workshop more complete?
