McKinney Roots Coop Project Proposal

Summary:

McKinney Roots is a five-acre non-profit farm located in West McKinney where everything produced is donated to community partners who help alleviate hunger in Collin County. McKinney Roots currently grows over 21 varieties of seasonal produce and raises 80 laying hens using only organic and natural practices. The farm uses roughly 2 acres for field crops, a mobile chicken coop for rotational grazing and fertilization, and a hydroponic greenhouse that can produce up to 5,000 heads of lettuce per year. In 2022, McKinney Roots donated 12,000 pounds of produce and 3,000 dozen eggs to local community kitchens and food banks, serving at least 250 families a week. McKinney Roots accomplishes this work with three employees and over 400 volunteers.

Mission:

McKinney Roots' mission is to provide fresh, nutrient-dense food to people experiencing hunger in Collin County. We achieve this by bringing our healthy harvests directly to the hands of those working with food insecure.

About McKinney Roots:

Founded in 2017, McKinney Roots started as a small backyard garden with the goals to reduce hunger and improve food access in Collin County. Food banks typically distribute canned or dry foods, often lacking the nutrient-dense produce needed to nourish the clients who depend on their offerings. To make up for the lack of fresh produce and help improve the health of the community, McKinney Roots started supplying local food pantries and community kitchens with produce grown in their gardens.

As the garden grew, so did its impact in the community, and the greater demand for fresh produce from local community partners inspired McKinney Roots to expand. After hearing about McKinney Roots' mission and need for space, Dr. Muhammad Uddin and Dr. Rahima Afroza offered their unused nearby property for rent. Located in West McKinney, the five-acre lot features an abandoned baseball field and soon became the new, bigger home of McKinney Roots.

At the beginning of 2020, it became apparent that to expand the operation from a garden to a farm, the organization also needed to expand. McKinney Roots merged their board of directors with the Harvest Seed Project Foundation's board of directors, allowing them to take advantage of years of non-profit and farming experience provided by the new board. As part of the expansion, an experienced Executive Director and a full time Farm Director were brought on to take over production. These changes positioned McKinney Roots to dramatically grow the farm in 2021 to provide more healthy food to people experiencing food insecurity.

The farm now features two acres of land in production of 21 varieties of seasonal produce, 8 honeybee hives, a mobile chicken coop, and a hydroponic greenhouse. McKinney Roots distributes to several food banks and community kitchens in Collin County including Community Lifeline Center, McKinney Little Free Pantry, Community Garden Kitchen, the Samaritan Inn, Neighbors Nourishing Neighbors, and churches. In 2022, McKinney Roots donated 12,000 pounds of produce and 3,000 dozen eggs to these partners. We have developed a dedicated team of more than 400 volunteers who generously give their time and talents to help us run our operations.

Project:

The McKinney Roots Coop Project is an expansion project to house an additional 400 laying hens, generating an average of 116,480 eggs a year, all of which will be donated to food pantries and community kitchens within Collin County. Our community partners have expressed extremely high demand for more eggs, and our current flock is unable to meet their needs. This coop expansion project will allow us to not only meet the needs of our partners, but to also add up to two additional distribution partners to supply with eggs, increasing our impact on the fight to eradicate hunger in Collin County.

The importance of donating more eggs to our community partners is significant. Along with our nutrient-dense produce, the eggs allow us to supply a lean protein source to nourish families in need. Farm fresh eggs are shown to produce less cholesterol and saturated fat than eggs purchased from the store. They also contain up to 20 times more omega 3 fatty acids, beta carotene, and vitamins A, E, and D, all of which contribute to a healthy diet. Our farm fresh egg donation goal will equal to 698,880 grams of protein provided to the food insecure. This amount of protein meets the requirements for 64 children every single day. Along with fulfilling protein and vitamins needs, the farm fresh eggs taste better, too! McKinney Roots believes in delicious, farm fresh food for all, from produce to protein.

The McKinney Roots Coop will be a 84 ft x 12ft x 24ft wooden framed chicken coop, and is designed to be as efficient and sustainable as possible with a rainwater harvesting system, solar powered doors, automatic feeders, drinkers, and rollout nesting boxes. In addition to the being more sustainable, these self-sufficient components boost efficiency by freeing our staff to work in the field, knowing the chickens are cared for in the coop. In addition to being an egg producer, the McKinney Roots Coop will serve as a composter, since the byproduct of the chickens will be used as fertilizer on the field crops to improve the nutrient density of produce. Chicken manure is a slow-release soil amendment that has balanced levels of NPK, high calcium, and lots of organic matter, all of which contribute to improving the clay soil we are currently cultivating. The rainwater harvested from the roof will be used to enrich the "chicken litter" and in turn, enrich the soil.

While the coop is not moveable like our current one, the chickens will still rotate on pasture through a "wagon wheel grazing system". Electric fencing will be used to move their grazing location and provide predator protection. By changing the free space they have access to, the chickens will always have fresh pasture to forage while allowing other sections to recover. The hens will also be supplied with continuous fresh water in a freeze-proof system, minimizing staff time to fill, monitor, break ice, and repair. The new coop will provide all the necessary amenities to have happy hens, happy farmers, and delicious eggs.

Timeline and schedule of Project:

McKinney Roots will begin the coop construction over this winter and complete it before Spring, our busiest growing season. Construction of the coop is estimated to take 4-5 months, taking into consideration that winter weather may cause delays.

January: Begin construction of the coop

February: Install electrical, solar panels, and automatic doors

March-April: Installation of roosting spaces, nesting boxes, waterers, etc.

April: Order chicks which will be brooded for us by a local farm

June: Acclimate chicks to the McKinney Roots coop

July: Coop fully operational

Population Served:

McKinney Roots focuses on serving the food insecure in Collin County, especially McKinney. Our organization works with nine community partners including McKinney Little Free Pantry, Community Garden Kitchen, Community Lifeline Center, the Samaritan Inn, Neighbors Nourishing Neighbors, and more. Each of these partners are food pantries, community kitchens, or churches that provide free meals and/or a food pantry to low-income families. In 2022, McKinney Roots was able to support 6,300 meals served by community kitchens or groceries for 250 families every week.

According to a 2020 study by Feeding America, 109,310 people in Collin County are food insecure. Our partner, Community Garden Kitchen, reports that more than 48,000 children in Collin County experience food insecurity, and 15% of Collin County residents live below the poverty line. Our goal at McKinney Roots is to reduce hunger in Collin County by providing farm fresh nutrient-dense food to community partners who serve this population.

Impact Goals:

Through the McKinney Roots Coop project, our goals are:

1. Build a new chicken coop to increase our number of laying hens from 80 to 480
2. Increase the number of eggs we donate to from 3,000 dozen a year to over 10,000 dozen
3. Increase the number of community partners receiving our eggs by at least two
4. Create a multipurpose chicken coop that is as sustainable as possible

Metrics to Evaluate Success:

McKinney Roots staff collects data daily regarding the inputs and outputs of our programs, including the pounds of produce and number of eggs donated to community partners. Additionally, we monitor the number of volunteers that assist us and how many hours of time they contribute to the farm. This data helps us determine the health and productivity of the farm as well as the impact of our donations on the community.

From our community partners, we receive information regarding the people that benefit from our donations, such as the number of families or individuals served or the number of meals provided.

Plans for Expansion:

McKinney Roots is always thinking forward about how we can grow more to give. Our goals for 2023 are to triple egg production and expand field production by 33%, thereby dramatically increasing the pounds of produce and number of eggs we donate to our community partners.
