CITIZEN ENGAGEMENT

We engage citizens and stakeholders to assist in identifying housing and community development needs. Engagement includes public hearings, workshops public input meetings, focus groups, social media, phone calls, website updates, surveys and more. Community, Faith-Based, Governmental and Business organizations, with residents working together.

Consolidated Planning

The Starting Line.

Consultation and Citizen Participation:

We will engage citizens and stakeholders to assist in identifying housing and community development needs. Community, Faith-Based, Governmental and Business organizations, as well as residents, neighborhoods, and departments working together.

Needs Assessment:

McKinney will collect and analyze quantitative data including demographic information; any racial or ethnic disproportionality in households with severe housing problems; the housing and services needs of households with low- or moderate-incomes (LMI), people experiencing homelessness, and other special populations. We will compare our previous data against new assessments to determine future needs and planning for 2025-2029 programming.

Market Analysis:

Quantitative data to complete an analysis of the housing and economic market conditions and the condition of housing and facilities for LMI households, people experiencing homelessness, and other special populations.
